New Lamps For Old

Tuesday will be "Lamp Day" for many a home decorator as Mrs. Ann McGowan, home economist of Southside Electric Coop, brings globes, brass fixtures, and all the trimmings to the county Home Demonstration Club Lamp Workshop. The public is cordially invited to bring lamps for improvement or "re-doing" to the Appomattox Elementary School from 3 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday. Miss Peggy Berger, home agent, above, with Mrs. Martin Webb, pose with a few of the many lamps Mrs. Webb has converted from oil to electricity. They say that with Mrs. McGowan's "know how," plus the right globe on that antique lamp base, a most attractive home accessory can be had for a very moderate sum. Part of the proceeds from the sale of lamp globes and fixtures will go to the county HD treasury. HD members are urged to come, bring friends, and invite the entire community to be a part of this county-wide project.

Twirlarma Today And Friday

It's all being done for the benefit of the Appomattox Elementary School's SCA fund. This fund, in years past, has furnished intercom equipment, clinic supplies, maps, pencil sharpeners, encyclopedias, and dozens of other pieces of equipment and furniture for the local school's needs.

Lynda Hall, AHS freshman, is all dressed up for her dance in the Fifth Annual Twirlarama today and Friday. In addition, she holds an important little book in her hand — a pad full of subscriptions to the Times-Virginian. Beginning this week Lynda, and other 4-H members throughout the county will be taking new and renewal subscriptions to the Times. One-third of each new subscription price goes to Lynda's 4-H club treasury. You can help the 4-Her's and read all the latest in county news by subscribing now to the Times-Virginian.

"I would revoke your license forever if I could," said Judge Crawley, in revoking the man's license for six months. He suspended his jail sentence, he said, only because of extenuating circumstances.

Council Hears Report By Lagoon Engineering Firm

Sgt. Leslie L. Stanley is seen with a certificate of commendation from C. W. Woodson, Supt. of State Police, which was presented to him on Friday, his last day of duty as acting State Police sergeant.

Stanley Enters Sheriff's Race

Sergeant Leslie L. Stanley, who retired from the State Police force Friday has announced his candidacy for Appomattox County Sheriff, opposing incumbent Walter Conner, in the July 9 Democratic primary.

Under State Police regulations personnel with at least 25 years creditable service are retired at age 60. Under this regulation Stanley could have worked until Jan. 1, 1964 but chose to retire early in order to be able to run for sheriff this year.

He was born Dec. 11, 1903 at Hebron Church in Appomattox County and attended Appomattox High School. He previously worked for the Norfolk & Western Railway and the Virginia Supply Co. of Bluefield, W. Va. before joining the State Police June 15, 1930.

Stanley had served all his time in State Police Area 21, of which he has been in charge since being promoted to sergeant April 1, 1939.

He is a member of the board of stewards and the Bible Class of Memorial Methodist Church in Appomattox.

Stanley has attended every school offered by the State Police since 1932, when the schools were started, and for the past 12 years has attended the department's supervisors school in Richmond. These schools included photography, finger printing, the new laws, accident investigation, crime investigation, handling riots and all other phases of police work.

* * *

HE RECENTLY was given a certificate by the department for 21 years' driving without an accident.

Capt. W. W. Blyth, commanding officer of State Police Division Three in Appomattox, of which Stanley's Area 21 is a part, said Stanley "was very dedicated to the Department of State Police, and he was very successful in his work.

"Nothing he lacked in any way he made up in loyalt; integrity and a tremendous capacity for hard work. He was a highly competent and efficient police officer who did his job exceptionally well."

Need For Blood Critical, Says Dr. Fratrick

Dr. A. A. Fratrick, county Bloodmobile chairman, says the only the most intense effort today and tomorrow, and a record turnout of donors can help Appomattox meet its quota of 190 pints of blood for the Bloodmobile visit Friday.

Memorial Methodist Church

The Bloodmobile will be stationed at Memorial Methodist Church in Appomattox, Fratrick said. This is a change from the usual location, Liberty Baptist Church, necessitated by Liberty Church's crowded schedule of meetings. Sandwiches and beverages will be served during the hours of 11-5, and a full complement of nurses, doctors, and assistants will be on hand.

William Hunter, county Red Cross chairman, says that the situation in Appomattox is so critical that the field director for the program, Donald Bowles, has voiced his concern over it.

Meeting with Hunter and going over the Appomattox record, Bowles stated that Appomattox, beginning in July, 1963, must get 95 per cent of its quota to be in good standing. If, in the first six months, the mark is not met, then the county is put on probation. If the quota is not met in the second half of the year, following probation the first six months, then the county faces possible loss of the program.

This would mean that only the immediate families of donors or other persons designated by them will receive free blood. Average cost of a pint of blood to a county resident may be from $45 to $50, without the Red Cross program. Of course, gallon donors are automatically included under the program, whether they give more or not.

The quota for this visit is a whopping 190 pints, due to the poor cooperation shown in the past two visits of the bloodmobile.

Will Construct Sanitary Fill At City Dump

Appomattox Town Council at its meeting Monday night heard from one of the firms contacted by the town to secure advice and cost estimates for the proposed sewage lagoon project. They also voted to proceed with construction of a modified land-fill operation to clean up the city-county dump.

D. D. Holdren and W. M. Johnson, of Wiley and Wilson, engineering firm of Lynchburg and Richmond, spoke at length on ways in which they could handle the project. They said that their firm could supply both the engineering survey necessary and also supervise construction; or do the engineering survey, alone, leaving the town to secure bids for the actual construction; or work on a "cost plus daily rate" basis, for the engineering survey and supervision of construction. Their rates, they said, are on a sliding scale, based on the cost of the project involved.

Sewage Lagoon Explained

W. M. Johnson explained that a sewage lagoon is a shallow, flat bottomed basin of water in which algae are deposited. The algae set upon organic matter (sewage) in the presence of sunlight to "eat up" the organic matter and render it harmless. Johnson told Councilmen that a small chlorination plant would be necessary to treat the water coming out of the lagoon.

"What about complaints from citizens?" Mayor Lawson asked the men. Johnson said that in Farmville where three lagoons are in use, there have been no complaints, nor have there been any in other locations with a similar set - up.

300 Users Per Acre

"Q. T. Finley, the other company representative, said that the State Water Control Board generally recommends a maximum of 300 users per acre of lagoon, though this number can be raised to 400 depending on the location of the lagoon and the amount of sunlight and "open space" available. "Sunlight and oxygen do the work," added Johnson. "Sunlight should penetrate the entire depth of the lagoon."

Johnson said that the lagoon should be located several hundred feet from residences with a fence about 50 feet from the lagoon. Grass should be planted and then kept mowed within this fenced - in area, he said, in order to present a better appearance; to prevent anyone from throwing trash in the lagoon; and to control mosquitoes and other insects.

25 Per Cent of Present Load

Town Manager Charles Hunter estimated that about 25 per cent of the users of the town's present
